Samantha Tidy & Aśka

When Grandma Burnt Her Bra uses humour to communicate the reality that, throughout history, both men and women have broken down barriers that women should no longer need to come up against. Our world is as spectacularly beautiful as it is complex. For us to find a place in it we need stories as varied and rich as the ways we experience it.

A story that is full of warmth, empathy and fun can be as valuable as a friend, showing us that we are understood. A story can make us feel seen and help us to see others. A story can empower us to act, or give us pause to consider our actions. Perhaps most importantly of all, a story is a place in which anything is possible.

At EK Books we publish carefully crafted stories that will curl up into the hearts of children, providing comfort, exciting their imaginations, and opening young eyes to fresh perspectives.

Among the many colourful, engaging characters, children will find those who reflect the truth of their world, encouraging them to appreciate their own unique talents, embrace their differences, or learn to regulate their emotions and build resilience.

Discover here stories about the power of imagination, the magic of connecting with nature, and the possibilities that come with persevering.

Inside, you'll find exciting new titles as well as much-loved books that have become classroom and home library classics. All of our books are supported by extensive notes for educators with activities that children will love.
