About the Author:

Debut author Nedda Lewers writes books that take children on fun adventures and feature characters who are trying to make sense of the big, complicated world and their place in it. Even though it wasn't easy growing up with one foot in America and the other in Egypt, Nedda cherishes how that experience has given her a rich and expansive perspective from which she draws to write her stories.

She is a member of SCBWI and a 2020 Author-Mentor Matchmentee.

DAUGHTERS OF THE LAMP was longlisted for the 2021 WriteMentor Children's Novel Award. You can learn more about Nedda at <https://neddalewers.com/books/>.

If last summer had taught Sahara anything, it was that when things didn't go as planned, they usually ended up working out better than she'd imagined. That didn't mean she'd given up on planning—that would be absurd—she just left room for the unexpected. And there would be plenty of it this year.

Sahara's newfound philosophy is tested when she returns to Cairo. Right before, actually, when best friend Vicky asks to tag along. No problem, a Ten Things to Do with Your BFF in Cairo list can be whipped up on the plane ride. Too bad it doesn't include what to do when Vicky strikes up a fast friendship with Umm Zalabya's—the quirky seer from last summer's—granddaughter, who seems keen on stealing Sahara's BFF.

And friendship is not the only thing on the line. From the moment Sahara sets foot in Egypt, her hamsa amulet begins acting berserk again, dragging her back to her family's secret chamber and unlocking the enchanted jinni lamp they've been protecting for centuries. That wouldn't be so horrible, if the awakened lamp hadn't also called to a certain witch hell-bent on reclaiming it. After remaining in hiding all year, El Ghoula re-emerges, striking back with a vengeance. She attacks Umm Zalabya, compromising the seer's magic, and kidnaps Vicky. If Sahara is to protect her family's legacy and recover her best friend, she's going to need to put her "trust the unexpected" motto to work, uncovering the real magic behind the lamp and allowing Umm Zalabya to train her in her wacky wind sorcery. Crap!

Blurbs:/ Publicity:

"Daughters of the Lamp triumphs as an action-packed journey across oceans and centuries. While filled to the brim with culture, the themes of family resonate universally, ensuring Sahara's story is one readers will not soon forget. I couldn't put down Lewers's electrifying debut!" George Jreije, author of Shad Hadid and the Alchemists of Alexandria (Harper Collins Children's, 2022).

"Gorgeously vivid and endlessly exciting, Daughters of the Lamp brims with magic, emotion and the importance of family. I absolutely adored it and can't wait for the rest of the series."

Aisling Fowler, author of the FIREBORN SERIES

"Lewers' debut will transport you to a magic-infused Cairo, where sweeping family dynamics and ancient tales intertwine. It's witty, wondrous, and a mesmerizing glimpse into the magic that's always hidden in the mundane."

-M.T. Khan, award-winning author of NURA AND THE IMMORTAL PALACE

TIME AND TIME AGAIN is a young adult contemporary romance that takes a disabled LGBT teen spin on Groundhog Day and would be perfect for fans of Casey McQuiston's One Last Stop and Adam Silvera's They Both Die at the End.

Seventeen-year-old Phoebe falls asleep with a stomach ache and wakes up to find the space-time continuum broken. She's stuck living the same sweltering summer day over and over again, confined to Florida suburbia and a constant stream of anxious thoughts. The day she's (for some godforsaken reason) forced to repeat is relatively boring. She mostly plays Scrabble with her dad and researches how to escape the time loop—desperate to reach her upcoming doctor's appointment with a gastroenterologist who takes her irritable bowel syndrome seriously.

TIME AND TIME AGAIN

by Chatham Greenfield

Boring that is until Phoebe's childhood crush Jess crashes into her with their car—and comes crashing into Phoebe's time loop. Jess convinces Phoebe to take a break from attempting to escape the loop and instead seize this day that has virtually no consequences. Whether they're draining their bank accounts to snag concert tickets or enacting revenge against a fatphobic bully, Jess tugs Phoebe headfirst out of her comfort zone. In turn, Phoebe finds herself falling for Jess all over again—forcing her to grapple with dreams of a future that may be impossible to reach.

A LIGHT MOST HATEFUL by Hailey Piper

Publicity/ Praise:

★ STARRED PW

This surreal offering from Bram Stoker Award winner Piper (Queen of Teeth) blends horror, fantasy, and domestic drama into a fiendishly imaginative saga. After teen Olivia Abram's parents discover her kissing another girl at a carnival, Olivia runs away from home to Chapel Hill, a claustrophobically small Pennsylvania town with nothing to recommend it other than Sunflower Mason, Olivia's best friend and unrequited love. Then a bizarre lightning storm sweeps through town, turning Chapel Hill's residents into violent, rage-filled zombies and spawning a serpentine monster that somehow knows Olivia's name. Olivia must band together with an unlikely group of survivors if she's to have any hope of making it out of Chapel Hill alive. Piper's prose crackles with energy and wit as it ties the novel's wilder excesses together into a story at once comfortingly familiar in its themes and cosmically alien in its execution. The story twists reader expectations into knots, flipping genre conventions and connecting unlikely elements to make something truly singular. The result is an ambitious, genre-shredding novel that takes big swings and, improbably, lands every one. Fans of Clive Barker's The Thief of Always will be especially hooked. (Oct.)

Thrillingly original. Piper deftly stitches threads of vulnerability, existential anxiety, and complex friendship power dynamics into a feverish, nail-biting, writhing-in-your-seat nightmare. A juicy horror tale you'll want to sink your teeth into, before it sinks its teeth into you.

— Rachel Harrison, Bram Stoker Award-nominated author of The Return

Hailey Piper's prose crackles sharply and thrums with the mesmerizing pulse of a passing summer storm. A vivid, imaginative, and chillingly tense novel, A Light Most Hateful cements Piper as one of the most spectacularly fierce talents working in horror fiction today. — Eric LaRocca, author of Things Have Gotten Worse Since We Last Spoke

A Light Most Hateful is filled with mesmerizing language that breathes cosmic chaos, abandonment, loneliness, and desperation. Piper explores the fear of betrayal by those closest to us and of the meaning of friendship and loyalty in the face of disparity. This is a book where the landscapes are upturned and roaming, where memories come to life as nightmares, and beckons us with the question, what if you can control the act of creation and uncreation? Piper has fabricated a darkly glorious woven reality where everything might exist and unexist simultaneously. — Ai Jiang, Nebula and Locus award finalist, and author of Linghun

Shades of Barker, Gaiman and King dance through A Light Most Hateful, but the horror is pure Hailey Piper. A devastating storm of unnatural origin? Check. A contagion of zombies infected with their own memories? Check. Nightmares begetting nightmares in a fractal convocation? Check. A friendship between two girls as opposite as they are alike, tested by fear and desire and destiny? Double and triple check! Piper envelops the reader in a tempest of terror from the first page to the last. It's as close to a thrill ride as you can get between two covers. Don't miss it! — David Demchuk, award-winning author of The Bone Mother and RED X

It's bad enough to wake up in a half-destroyed evil wizard's workshop with no eyebrows, no memories, and no idea how long you have before the Dread Lord Whomever shows up to murder you horribly and then turn your skull into a goblet or something.

It's a lot worse when you realize that Dread Lord Whomever is...you.

Gav isn't really sure how he ended up with a castle full of goblins, or why he has a princess locked in a cell. All he can do is play along with his own evil plan in hopes of getting his memories back before he gets himself killed. But as he realizes that nothing—from the incredibly tasteless cloak adorned with flames to the aforementioned princess—is quite what it seems, he'll also have to make some tough choices and decide if he wants to be Dread Lord Gavrax at all.

DREADFUL by Rebecca Rozakis (writing as Caitlin Rozakis) is a high fantasy farce featuring killer moat squid, toxic masculinity, an evil wizard convocation, and a garlic festival. All at once. Dread Lord Gavrax has had better weeks.

A JACKET OFF THE GORGE

by Susan Ashline

Publisher: Post Hill Press

Pub date: 11/28/23

Rights: Translation

Reality becomes more dangerous than fiction when an author is pulled into the secrets and deceptions of an enigmatic con man who faked his own death and stole a treasure of ancient gold and silver coins that are still missing to this day.

A Jacket Off the Gorge is a page-turning real-life psychological thriller that tells the story of a journalist who crosses paths with a master manipulator—exposing the shortcomings of a criminal justice system that failed them both.

About the Author:

Susan Ashline is the author of the nationally acclaimed true crime book Without a Prayer: The Death of Lucas Leonard and How One Church Became a Cult. She is an Emmy-nominated journalist whose career spans more than twenty-five years. Her work has received major awards, including a first place Associated Press award for general excellence in individual reporting, and a Gannett Gold Medal award. Susan graduated from the University of Massachusetts, and she studied at the University of New Mexico and the State University of New York.

Jon Fontaine's teenage years are shaped by his motivation to run a lucrative drug-selling enterprise. Despite the many tricks up his sleeve, the law catches up with him time after time. To escape a lengthy prison sentence, Jon bails out of jail and fakes his own death. He throws his jacket off a gorge, the pinnacle of a meticulously staged suicide. Police find the jacket and declare him dead, only to capture him later as a fugitive from justice.

Seven years after the ruse, Jon meets Susan, who is unaware of his criminal past. And he's keeping a secret: he's stolen a treasure of ancient gold and silver coins. He will never give away its location. Jon is artful in deception and manipulation, particularly of the women who love him. Susan has the professional connections, resources, and intelligence that could benefit him. Will he take advantage of her trust for personal gain?

Jon sends Susan on a roller-coaster of love and fear, and exploits the weaknesses in the criminal justice system to work his biggest cons yet, ending in a trail of victims—and death.

A Jacket Off the Gorge peels back the layers of the criminal mind, revealing a fascinating look at one man's struggles within himself and with others. Jon's story raises questions about incarceration versus rehabilitation, lack of mental health treatment for offenders, and abuses by those we entrust to uphold the law.

Having spent most of her senior year flying under the radar, the last thing Ella Lockhart expected was to have a tornado rip straight through her house, leaving her homeless. It's bad enough that the whole school now pities her, but did her parents have to let the neighbors take them in?

Now she's sharing a house with Ethan Poe, her former best friend-turned-enemy. All those feelings she used to have for him are starting to rain down on her again. Too bad he's a jerk and his new girlfriend has territorial issues. Thanks to Mother Nature, Ella's house and her entire life have been turned upside down.

Ethan isn't quite sure why Ella hates him so much, but he does know she wants nothing to do with him. He's never quite gotten over the crush he had on her as a kid, and now that she's living across the hall, it's hard to stay away. His girlfriend isn't helping the situation and when she shows her true colors, he doesn't want to date her anymore. He wants to date someone like Ella. Too bad she hates him.

SWIMMING IN A SEA OF STARS

by Julie Wright

About the author:

Julie Wright has written 26 novels and is a two-time Whitney Award winner. Her books have received several starred reviews and have been listed in the American Library Association's top ten romances of the year. She is a mental health advocate and loves spending time with the youth of our world. She's a sucker for almost all things nerdy: Doctor Who, Disneyland, the Marvel Universe, Harry Potter, Lord of the Rings, fairytales, and Jane Austen. She believes in second chances, getting up and trying again, and in the power and magic of love, forgiveness, generosity, and compassion. She loves writing, reading, traveling, snorkeling, hiking, playing with her family, and watching her husband make dinner.

Journal entry: Heading to school. I know what everyone will say. There goes the girl who tried to kill herself.

Addison is no stranger to feeling stressed, insecure, and sad. Her therapist recommended she keep a journal to help her understand those feelings better, which she really needs today. It's her first day back to school, several weeks after she survived her suicide attempt. She knows there are rumors about why she did it: A lousy home life? Bullying? Heartbreak? None of them are true, but it doesn't matter because Addison still feels like she's drowning. She still holds secrets she's not ready to share.

During the school day, Addison encounters four other students struggling with their own secrets:

Booker is anxious about seeing Addison. They were sort of a couple until he tried to kiss her. She fled and then tried to end her life. Those two things couldn't be related, could they?

Celia feels trapped by her mother's abusive boyfriend. She can guess why Addison did what she did.

Damion is TikTok-famous and thinks befriending Addison could boost his followers. But what no one knows is he needs the world to remember him since his sick mom doesn't anymore.

Avery is considered a loner and doesn't know Addison, but they have neighboring lockers. With Avery's older brother in jail for dealing drugs, Avery is desperate for meaningful human connection.

Swimming in a Sea of Stars is a poignant and gripping novel about how we're all interconnected, like the stars in the night sky that form constellations and map out the universe, and if even one star goes missing, the effect is profound.

HOW'S YOUR SURVIVAL INSTINCT...?

It's been four years since you've seen your best pals from high school. Four years since the graduation that sent you on your own separate paths. Now it's time to get together for a fun camping trip. Pack your bags. It's going to be a killer weekend!

You've seen the movies. Five teenagers venture into a haunted house on a dare. Only one of them comes out alive. The others die horrible grizzly deaths, each while trying to get to safety. Except in their attempts to escape, they do the exact opposite of what they should do. You scream at them. You tell them not to do it. And yet they do. And they die. If only they had listened. Good news. Now it's your chance. You get to make the choices. You get to try to stay alive. Here's one thing to keep in mind though. In the movie, four out of five don't make it out alive. The odds are against you.

You've been warned.
